

Our vision

Our Physics Community Values stem from the basic principle that members of our community should treat each other with respect and decency at all times. In turn, we should not alienate, diminish or insult each other, either in word or deed.

Our values

Well-being

We support each other at all times and remember that we are not alone.

Respect

We value the multitude of ways to be a member of the physics community and the many paths through our field and Department.

Inclusion

We strive to speak and act in ways that support and include all members of our community.

Collaboration

Physics is a social endeavor and we proudly collaborate with others to advance the field.

Mentorship

All members of the community are here because of the mentorship we have received and continue to receive, and the mentorship we offer to others.
